In July, my husband and I took our (a) back in time — to Dogwood Pass, a replica of an Old West (b) from the 1800s. It's in the hills of southern Ohio. The town started with the Dogwood Saloon. Mike and Sharlene Montgomery (c) it in 2010 just for their family. Soon Mike began adding other buildings, and later the Montgomerys opened it up to the public. The town now has a jail, a general store, a bathhouse, a (d), a bakery, a museum, and many other buildings. There are actors in (e) walking around the park. They make it feel real! You can see people doing things the way they did a century ago. When we were there, we saw a man making horseshoes by (f). We saw the Wild West Show, too. That was my husband's favorite part. The kids liked riding horses best. I liked the photography studio. We all got dressed up in old costumes and had our family (g) taken. We looked so funny. We laughed a lot! And we got a photo as a souvenir. I think Dogwood Pass is a great place to take the whole family.

Are You Who You Say You Are?

They say that when people die, they go to the Pearly Gates, or the gates of heaven. St. Peter is the one who is in charge of deciding who can get into heaven. He knows that many people want to get in and occasionally bad people will try to disguise themselves in order to get in, so he sometimes asks people questions to make sure they are who they say they are.

For example, in 1926, when a famous artist died and went to heaven, St. Peter met him at the gates. The man said he was Claude Monet, and St. Peter said, "Oh, I love your work. But I need you to prove your identity. Can you prove that you are really Claude Monet?"

Monet said, "Sure, just give me a canvas, a paintbrush and some paint."

St. Peter gave him those things, and Monet painted a beautiful picture of water lilies. Of course, everyone knows what Monet's water lilies look like, and so did St. Peter, so he let him into heaven.

Years later, in 1955, Einstein died and went to heaven. St. Peter met him at the gates. When Einstein told him his name, St. Peter asked, "The famous genius? Can you prove that you are really Albert Einstein?"

Einstein said, "Sure. Just give me a blackboard and some chalk."

St. Peter gave him those things, and Einstein showed him some of his amazing theories. Of course, St. Peter let him in.

Recently, a famous former football player died. When he went to the Pearly Gates, he said, "My name is Joe Smalls."

St. Peter knew the name because he was a big football fan. He knew that Mr. Smalls had been a linebacker until his early 40s. That is a tough position to play because linebackers get a lot of helmet-to-helmet hits.

St. Peter said, "I'm sorry, Mr. Smalls, but I only saw you with your helmet on, so I need proof that you are who you say you are."

Joe Smalls said, "I don't have my I.D. on me. I don't know how I can prove it."

St. Peter said, "Monet painted water lilies to prove who he was. Einstein explained his theories. Maybe you can do something to prove your identity."

Joe blinked and said, "Who are Monet and Einstein?"

St. Peter said, "OK, Mr. Smalls. You can go in."

Susan's Diary

Thursday, August 26th (10:05 p.m.)

Tonight, Tosi and I went to a big concert hall for the first time in a long time. Because of the coronavirus, we had to follow social distancing rules. The hall can hold 3,000 people, but only about 600 people were allowed in. Everyone was wearing masks, of course, and we were instructed not to shout. The concert was called Concerto no Yube. There were three solo pianists and an orchestra. Everyone performed well. They seem to be very happy to perform in front of an audience for the first time in a long time. We could feel their energy. Everyone in the audience was glad to see a concert. At the end of each piece, everyone wanted to shout, "Bravo!" but they weren't allowed to, so they clapped very hard and for a long time. At the end of the concert, all of the pianist came back on stage and stood in front of the orchestra. The orchestra members stood up and everyone took a bow. There was thunderous applause and a standing ovation. The pianists left the stage once, but the applause continued, so they came back on stage. They left the stage again, but everyone kept clapping, so the musicians came back on stage again. When they left the stage the third time, people kept clapping, but this time they didn't come back on stage and the lights came on, so finally the audience stopped clapping and began to leave. It was a great evening. I'm really glad I went!

Notes and examples:

be allowed (to do) = ~することを許される

- ① Our cat is not allowed (to go) outside.
- ② A: Can kids ride that roller coaster?
B: Yes. Kids 12 and over are allowed to.

be instructed (not) to do

= ~する[しない]ように指示される

- ① We were instructed to wear safety goggles.
- ② A: Can we take off our masks?
B: No. We were instructed not to.

audience = 聴衆, 観客

- ① Everyone in the audience cheered when the singers came out on stage.
- ② A: I'm so nervous.
B: That's natural! It's your first time on stage in front of a big audience!

clap = applaud = 握手する

- ① Everyone clapped at that part of my speech.
- ② A: What's a standing ovation?
B: That's when the whole audience stands and applauds.

take a bow = おじぎして感謝の意を表す

- ① At the end of the play, we all went back on stage and took a bow.
- ② A: I hope the singers come back out again.
B: They will. They have to take a bow.

(thunderous) applause = (割れんばかりの) 握手

- ① The singer received thunderous applause.
- ② A: She didn't perform very well.
B: I think the audience agrees. She got only polite applause.

*polite applause

= 社交辞令的な拍手

A report published in 2009 confirmed the belief that smoking bans reduce the risk of heart attacks among nonsmokers. In the past, lawmakers and business owners have argued against smoking bans because they thought the bans would hurt business. But the 2009 report showed that smoke-free laws not only don't hurt business, but they prevent heart attacks in nonsmokers. It showed that there is no safe level of smoke exposure, especially for someone who was already at risk of a heart attack. That's because smoke's small particles can quickly affect blood vessels. In the U.S. in 2009, smoking bans protected 41% of Americans in public from secondhand smoke. In 2016, that number was up to 58%. Worldwide, however, less than 20% of people were covered by smoke-free laws in 2018.

- T•F 1. According to a major report, smoking bans have no effect on nonsmokers.
- T•F 2. Smoking bans did not hurt business, according to the report.
- T•F 3. When the report was published, most Americans were protected from second-hand smoke when in public places.

"Takken" (the Japanese Real Estate License) is a national qualification needed to ①operate a real estate business in Japan. At any licensed real estate company, one out of every five staff members must be a Takken holder. In addition, a Takken holder must be present during any real estate ②transaction and must explain the details of the transaction to the ③parties involved. The exam is held only once a year, in October. It is a 2-hour exam that ④consists of 50 multiple choice questions, including questions about civil law, real estate and business laws, city planning and building ⑤regulations, and taxes. The pass rate is usually between 15 and 20 percent. In 2019, it was 17 percent. Those planning to take the Takken exam will want to study and memorize past exam questions because 40 percent of the test questions are from past exams.

That's Not ENGLISH!

Rick (R) and Christie (C) have just finished having lunch at the university cafeteria.

R: Want to go to the library with me?

C: What are you going there for?

R: I've got to rent some books and return this DVD.

C: You checked out a DVD?

R: Yes. It was for a class. So, do you want to go with me or not? I'd like to go now, before it starts raining.

C: Too late. It's showering.

R: Already? I left my umbrella in my dorm room! I didn't think it would rain until later this afternoon.

C: Don't worry. We can share mine.

R: Thanks. I usually don't mind the rain, but this is a suede coat.

C: It's nice. It would be a shame if it got ruined.

R: Yeah. My mom gave it to me for my birthday last week. She'd angry if I got it all wet!

Let's check and practice the phrases:

① rent → borrow

❑ The library won't let anyone borrow more than five books at a time.

㊦ A: That's a cool leather jacket! Where did you get it?

B: I borrowed it from my brother.

② showering → sprinkling

❑ It's not raining hard. It's just sprinkling.

㊦ A: I don't want to go for a walk. It's raining.

B: Oh, come on. It's just sprinkling.

A: It's sprinkling now, but it looks like a storm is coming.

③ angry → get angry

❑ I can tell he's mad because his face turns bright red when he gets angry.

㊦ A: What did Phil get so angry about?

B: Oh, he was mad because someone had taken his parking space.
