1-POINT QUIZ

ボックス内の例を見て、ルールを考えて、クイズを解いてみましょう。

Using EXCEPT and BESIDES can be confusing.
Look at the examples below:

- ① I get up at six every day except Sunday.
- ② I love all kinds of fruit, except grapefruit.
- ③ Nobody except the teacher came to class that day.
- ④ Besides English, he teaches Italian.
- ⑤ Who is going to the party besides Tom?
- ⑥ Besides the teacher, no one came to class that day.

What's the Rule?

Circle the correct answer.

- ① [Except A • Besides A] means "not including A."
= Aを除いて・A以外は
- ② [Except A • Besides A] means means "in addition to A."
= Aのほかに・Aに加えて
- ③ [No ~ except A / No ~ besides A] means "only A."
= A以外はない・Aのほかにない
= Aしかない

Choose the best answer in each sentence.

(Be careful! Sometimes both are correct!)

1. Is anyone [except • besides] me cold?
Can I turn on the heater?
2. [Except • Besides] Japan, what countries have you been to?
3. My wife and I go to the gym every day [except • besides] Monday.
4. He was *mad because she had invited everyone [except • besides] him.

Did You Hear That?

Martin has always loved being out in nature. When he was a little boy, he used to go hiking and camping with his parents. Martin's mom and dad really loved birds and taught their son everything they knew about them, like where they liked to *nest, what they liked to eat, and how to *identify various birds by their songs.

When it was time for Martin to go away to college, he decided to study *biology at the University of Michigan. It was there that he met Kate. Kate was studying to be an *accountant. She was a city girl who didn't know anything about *the outdoors. Martin and Kate were very different, but they became great friends and soon fell in love.

Martin wanted to share his *passion for nature with Kate, so one day he took her birdwatching. Kate *was impressed with how much Martin knew about all of the birds they saw. She was *especially impressed with his ability to *recognize each bird's call. She said she wanted to learn more about birds, so Martin gave her a CD of 100 common bird songs. Kate listened to it at home when she was doing homework, cooking or just cleaning the house. She really wanted to *memorize some calls before they went birdwatching the next time.

A few weeks later, Martin and Kate were hiking in the hills. He wanted to show Kate his favorite *spot for birdwatching. When they were walking along the *trail, Martin stopped. "Shh," he said.

It was very quiet, and they heard a very clear and *unique bird song.

Martin said, "Did you hear that?"

"Yes!" Kate said. "And there it is again!"

"Do you recognize it?" Martin asked.

"Of course," Kate said, *confidently. "That's number 43!"

★Sunday, March 19th (10:05 p.m.)

I went to Chukyo Racecourse (Keibajo) with Tosi, Keiko and Yukiko. The horses race there only from December through March. In other months, they race at other racetracks, so we can only watch the races on the monitors. Tosi wanted us to see the races in person. First, Tosi showed us around. She showed us the paddock, the track, and then the betting station. After that we went to a cafe for ladies only, and Tosi explained how to choose a race, choose a horse, and place a bet. There are 12 races per day. We decided to bet on the main race and two other races. Before the first of our races, we went back to the paddock to look at the horses that would be in the race. We each chose our horses and then we went to the betting station, and they placed their bets. It was Keiko's first time, so she bet the minimum, ¥100, on three horses. Yukiko and Tosi bet more because they had done it before. I was too afraid to bet! After that we went to the racetrack and watched the race. None of our horses won. Before our next race, we went to the paddock again, chose our horses, and then placed our bets. This time Yukiko and Tosi won a little money, but Keiko lost again. Before the main race, we went to the paddock again, chose our horses, and placed our bets. Yukiko won again, and in the end she had more money than when she started. Keiko won a little money, but in the end she had less than when she started. Tosi won a little, so she broke even. Yukiko was happy that she had won some money, and she wants to go again in December. Keiko wants to go again in December to win her money back. On the way home, we stopped at a cafe, and Yukiko bought us coffee with her winnings.

HOW MUCH DO YOU UNDERSTAND?

Read the paragraph and answer the TRUE/FALSE (本当ならT嘘ならF) questions. Answers on p. 11.

Ladies, I'm going to tell you something that might not make sense at first, but *hear me out: if you want to fit into a smaller clothing size, you need to gain weight. I don't mean you should eat chips and donuts and gain fat. On the contrary, I mean you should lift weights and gain muscle. That's because even though a pound of fat is equal to a pound of muscle in weight, muscle is denser, *i.e. it takes up less space. So if two women weigh the same, but one has more muscle than the other, the one with more muscle wears a smaller size. To achieve the slimming effect, you need to lose fat while simultaneously gaining muscle mass. But this is not hard, because when you add muscle, your basal metabolic rate goes up. In other words, the more muscle you have, the more calories you burn per day just to carry out your basic *vital functions, such as breathing, maintaining body temperature and circulating blood. And if you also reduce caloric intake on top of adding weight-lifting to your workout, you'll go down in size even faster.

- T • F 1. If you gain muscle, you will fit into a smaller size unless you lose fat too.
- T • F 2. Fat is less dense than muscle and takes up more space than muscle does.
- T • F 3. Your basal metabolic rate is the number of calories you need to stay alive, work and play.

That's Not ENGLISH!

Mei (M) is in the break room one morning when Kelly (K) comes in carrying a shopping bag.

M: What's in the bag?

K: A hair dryer. I bought it the other day, but I'm going to back it after work.

M: What's wrong? Doesn't it use?

K: Well, yes and no. It works when I turn it on, but it doesn't work with my hair.

M: What do you mean?

K: Well, it's one of those minus ion dryers.

They're supposed to* make your hair super smooth and shiny*. The problem is that my hair is always flat*, and this dryer makes it even flatter.

M: Oh. That's not good at all! You know, the other day, I saw an ad online for an ionic dryer that can switch between positive and negative ions. You set it to "positive" to add body* and set it to "negative" when you want to smooth out* your hair.

K: Really? I've never seen one! I'll look when I get to the store. Maybe I can exchange this one for one of those.

M: I hope so. It would be perfect for your hair.

- ★ be supposed to do = ~するはずである
- ★ shiny = つやのある
- ★ flat = ボリュームのない
- ★ body = ボリューム
- ★ smooth out = サラサラにする

Did you find all 3 of the mistakes? Let's check and practice the phrases.

① back it → take it back / return it

- a If you don't like the gift he gave you, you can take it back.
- b A: That sweater was cute! I can't believe you returned it!
B: I had no choice! I wanted to exchange it, but they didn't have it in my size.

② use → work

- a This hairspray works even on really rainy days.
- b A: The remote control doesn't work. I think it's broken.
B: Try changing the batteries. There are some in the desk drawer.

③ minus ion → negative ion [発音: アイアン]

- a This air purifier uses negative ions to clear the air of dust.
- b A: How does it add volume to your hair?
B: Instead of negative ions, it uses positive ones, which open the hair cuticle. [hair cuticle = 毛小皮]
