What Took You So Long?

Ron and Ellie met in college and got married soon after they graduated. They've been married for ten years now. They're saving money to buy a bigger house, so they're careful with their money.

One day Ellie sent Ron to the store to get dog food. She thought he'd be gone for half an hour or so, but over an hour later, he finally came home.

"What took you so long?" she asked. Then she saw that he was carrying several bags. "And what on earth did you buy?"

"Honey! You should have come with me!" Ron said. "They were having a big sale on clothes!"

"Did you actually buy clothes at the supermarket?"

"Yeah. Why?" Ron replied.

Ellie just shook her head. She was a lot pickier about her clothes than Ron was. She didn't waste money on luxury brands, but she couldn't imagine buying her clothes at the same place where she bought milk and toilet paper, either.

"Because . . . oh, never mind. Just show me what you bought," she said.

Ron showed her everything he had bought. "These plaid shirts were only $9 each! These cargo shorts were two pairs for $10. They're just like the ones I have on! This puffy vest was 75% off. Can you guess how much I paid for it?" he asked.

"I cannot," Ellie said. "Just tell me."

"Oh, come on. Guess!"

"OK, um . . . $20," Ellie said.

"Nope! Just 15!" he said excitedly.

"Well, I'm glad you're happy, honey," Ellie said.

Then Ron tried a plaid shirt on over his T-shirt. He put the vest on over that. "Look! They fit!"

"You look like an old man. An old man who is about to go fishing," Ellie said dryly.

"No, I don't! I look sporty!" Ron said defensively.

Later that night they were watching TV when a commercial came on. It was for some kind of heartburn medicine, and there were two old guys in a little boat, and they were fishing.

Ellie said, "Honey. Those old guys . . ."

Ron said, "Don't say it!"

They were wearing cargo shorts, plaid shirts, and puffy vests.

What took you so long? = 何やってたの?

what on earth = 一体何

shake one's head = (あきれて)頭を振る

picky about A = ~の好みがるさい

My go-to drink (a) home is shochu with hot water. Shochu is not the same as sake, which is like a rice wine. It's a distilled spirit, so it's (b) vodka or gin. The flavor of shochu depends on what it's made (c). It can be made from rice, barley, buckwheat, sugar cane, and other things. I like shochu made (d) sweet potatoes, so that's what I usually drink. The other night, however, I was (e) the mood for some wine and blue cheese. (f) my way home from work, I stopped at the grocery store and bought some cheese. I didn't need to buy wine because I always have wine in the house, just in case! But when I got (g) home, I didn't feel like having wine and cheese. I was too tired. In the end, I drank shochu with hot water, as usual.

Susan's Diary

Monday, May 10th (10:05 p.m.)

Yesterday was Mother's Day. My sisters and I never know what to get our mom. We can't buy her clothes because she's so picky about what she wears. She doesn't want perfume or jewelry. She doesn't really need anything. The only thing she loves is flowers, so we sent her a gift card to Wally's Garden Center. She can go there and pick out what she wants. She seemed happy. She loves to shop for flowers.

So, Mother's Day is over, and now Father's Day is just around the corner. It's even harder to find a gift for our dad. I called my older sister this morning to ask if she had any gift ideas. She didn't have any, either, so we texted our little sister while we were on the phone. None of us had any good ideas. In the end, we decided not to get him anything. That sounds mean, but it's not. My younger sister was recently at our parents' house and discovered that he hasn't even touched some of his Christmas presents. He opened them on Christmas morning, put them in the corner of the living room behind a big chair, and they are still there, in their boxes. So it's a waste of money to buy him things he doesn't want. And our dad always tells us not to waste money. So I guess that's our gift to him!

Notes and examples:

picky about A = Aの好みがある

- ① He's really picky about what he eats. He won't eat anything green.
- ② A: Which coffee shop do you want to go to?
B: You decide. I'm not picky about coffee.

pick out A / pick A out = Aの好みがある

- ① I finally picked out a desk for my office.
- ② A: Do you need me to go with you?
B: Yes, if you don't mind. I'd like you to help pick out new wall paper and curtains.

just around the corner = もうすぐ、そこまで着ている

- ① Summer vacation is just around the corner!
- ② A: I really don't feel like studying.
B: I know, but we have to. Finals are just around the corner!

even + 比較級 = さらに、いっそう

- ① Morikoro Park is even bigger than Meijo Park.
- ② A: I made cheesecake instead of apple pie.
B: Yay! That's even better!

none of us[you, them, etc.] = だれも...ない

- ① None of my friends are married yet.
- ② A: What took you guys so long?
B: None of us knew how to get back to the hotel. We went around in circles.

mean = 意地悪

- ① He thinks his teacher is mean because she gives her students a lot of homework.
- ② A: Look! My dog can balance a piece of ham on his nose for over a minute.
B: Oh, that's mean! Let him eat the ham!

F: That's good. I'm amazed at how fast they are vaccinating people in America!

S: Well, it started slowly there, but they tried different things to speed things up.

F: (c)?

S: Well, they increased the vaccine supply,
(d). The government made it easier for drug companies to get the supplies they needed to make the vaccines.

F: Yes, I read that, too. Three vaccines have been approved in the U.S., right?

S: Right. And the government approved more vaccination centers, like supermarkets and drugstores, and allowed more people to give the shots. Many places take walk-ins now!

F: Oh, I read that Japan's health ministry is

Last winter, Ohio saw a spike in COVID-19 cases, while at the same time, hospitalizations for flu were remarkably low. Fewer than 80 people were hospitalized for influenza by March of this year. Compare that to almost 4,500 hospitalizations by the same time last year. This sharp decrease is related to the coronavirus, but it's not due to any biological effect the coronavirus has on flu viruses. Rather it's a result of the preventative practices—wearing masks, social distancing, and proper hand hygiene—that were used to stop the spread of the coronavirus. Both diseases are transmitted in the same way, but influenza viruses are less contagious* than the coronavirus. It is not surprising that efforts to prevent the spread of the coronavirus would also stop the spread of influenza. In addition, more Ohioans chose to get their flu shots last winter, which helped reduce the spread of the flu to some degree.

- T • F 1. The coronavirus slowed the spread of the flu due to a unique biological influence.
- T • F 2. The things we do to prevent the spread of the coronavirus also prevent the spread of influenza viruses.
- T • F 3. Last winter, vaccinations had a greater impact on flu transmission than masks, social distancing and hand washing did.

* biological = 生物学的

* hand hygiene = 手指衛生

* contagious = 伝染力がある

Imagine a classic* Italian dish. Did you ①picture spaghetti and meatballs? If you did, try again. According to an American research ②foundation, the dish we call "spaghetti and meatballs" is an Italian-American ③invention. It was invented by Italian ④immigrants who came to America in the late 1800s and early 1900s. In Italy, they ate polpette, which are small meatballs that are eaten ⑤on their own or in soups. In the New World, where meat was cheaper and there were different ingredients* available, the Italian-Americans made the meatballs bigger and served them over spaghetti with marinara* sauce.

That's Not ENGLISH!

Rob (R) is talking to his sister, Laura (L).

R: I've got to do something about my dad bod. I think I've gained weight during the pandemic.

L: You may be right! I read an article about how the pandemic has changed us physically. It said people have gained an average of 30 pounds!

R: I am not surprised at all!

L: People have more back and neck problems, too.

R: Because they don't sit at a good desk at home?

L: Right. And more people have tooth problems.

R: Because they're afraid to go to the dentist's?

L: That's one reason. Another is that stress causes us to clench and grind our teeth. Dentists say seeing more chipped and cracked teeth and more patients with jaw pain and headaches.

R: Wow. One good thing I've noticed is that my feet are happier.

L: Mine, too! I haven't worn high heels in a year! But the article said there's an increase in heel pain, tendinitis and broken toes from walking around barefoot.

R: Oh. That's not good. Has it affected our mental?

L: Yes. There's more anxiety and depression, and people are drinking more.

R: I had no idea homeworking was so bad for us!

★clench / grind (one's teeth)= 歯を食いしばる/歯ぎしりする

★jaw = 顎 ★heel = 踵 ★tendinitis = 腱炎
